

Are these dental veneers for whiter teeth thatâ??s being promoted by Instagram influencers really safe?

Description

How do you know if your dentist is licensed to provide dental services in Singapore?

I usually look out for their practising certificate and professional qualifications. If those are not available and Iâ??m in doubt, I do a quick check on the Singapore Dental Councilâ??s public database here.

Recently dental veneers administered by a Bibi Zhu caught my attention after I saw it being promoted by various influencers here in Singapore on Instagram.

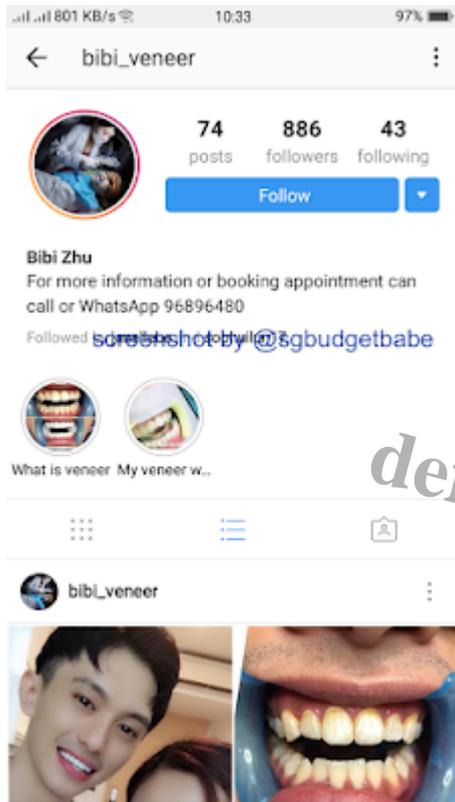

As I mentioned previously, I avoided the Beautiful Teeth Whitening Kit like the plague when it went viral (also largely because various influencers were promoting it), as I suspected that it contained an exceedingly high level of hydrogen peroxide in order to achieve that sort of whitening effect and believed that could only be supplied through registered dentists instead of a DIY kit made and sourced from China. Yet at that time, some of the influencers who were promoting and selling it claimed that it did not contain hydrogen peroxide at all, and you can read about my original suspicions here.

Well, a month later I was proven right, and HSA officially came out with a statement containing exactly what I had suspected was wrong with the kit. But by then it was a little too late, as many of my friends around me had fallen prey to the marketing gimmick and had already used it.

Barely a year later, we have dental veneers now and once again, I'm doubtful whether this is truly safe to go for. The person administering it goes by the name of Bibi Zhu on Instagram:

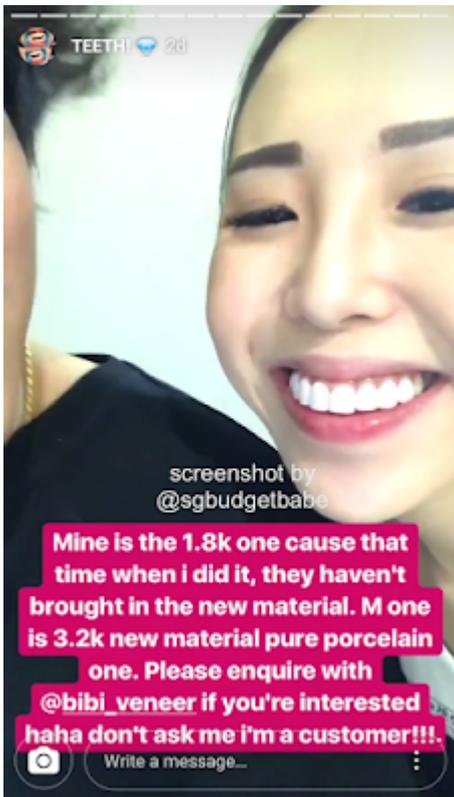

I won't lie, the photos (especially that posted by the influencers who have undergone the procedure with her) look really tempting and you can judge for yourself here:

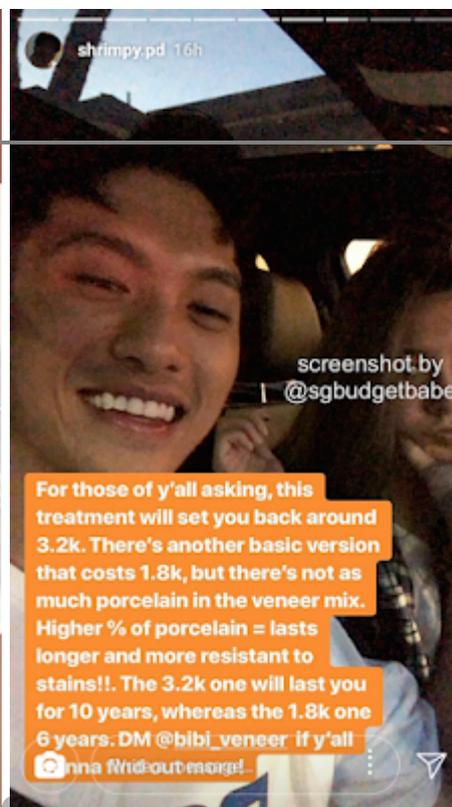

default watermark

Screenshots from @abbydae Instagram highlights

Screenshots from @euchristelle Instagram highlights

default watermark

Screenshots from @shrimpy.pd Instagram stories

Now, I'm not too sure if any of these influencers had done their due diligence prior to doing their procedures, much less promoting it on their Instagram, but I decided to check out more details on my own before deciding whether to go for it.

What are dental veneers?

Veneers are generally thin pieces of porcelain that are molded to fit and attached to the front of your teeth. If you've ever wondered how your favourite Hollywood celebrities seem to have perfect white teeth all the time, there's a good chance they might have done veneers.

The cost generally starts from $1000 and up for a veneer in Singapore, so if you need 6 veneers each for your upper and lower front teeth, you can prepare to fork out a 5-figure sum as an estimation. During the procedure, the teeth are disinfected and a composite cement is used to seal the teeth under the veneers.

What are the risks?

But while veneer might give you a perfect smile immediately after, it is not a procedure to cure the underlying dental problems, especially if your teeth is decayed or rotten. It can hide your problems, but that could lead to even worse problems down the road if proper dental treatment is not sought.

In extreme cases of botched procedures, the gaps between the veneers and the underlying tooth can also allow bacteria and decay to flourish, or if the dentist removes too much tooth enamel, the nerve could even become inflamed or infected that might just cause the tooth to fall off.

You will not be a candidate for Dental Veneers if:

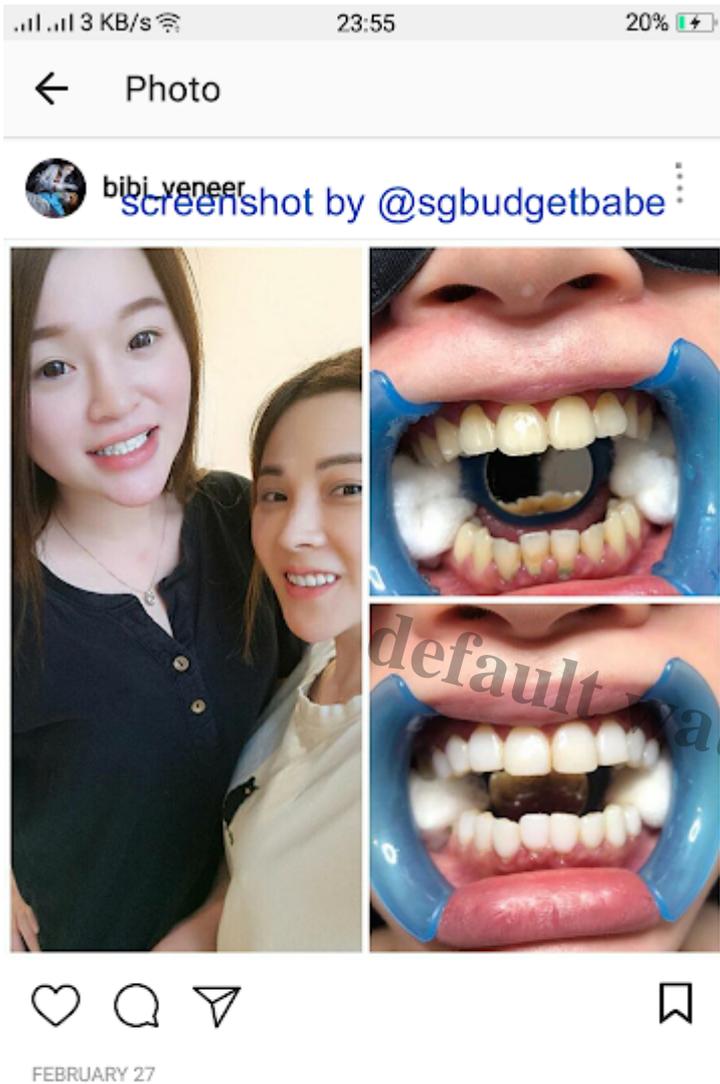

- You have crowded malposition or misaligned teeth
- About to start any orthodontic treatments
- You have a severely misaligned bite
- You are a sever grinder or clencher
- You have thin tooth enamel
- Have weak or brittle teeth
- Gum disease is present
- Oral hygiene is not a priority to you
- You have gum disease
- Excessive smoking and drinking of carbonated sugar beverages

Dental Veneers are a cosmetic treatment, therefore, cannot not be used to treat more complex dental issues which will be better addressed through alternative treatments eg. orthodontics, crowns, implants, bridges etc.

Source: CosMediTour Dental

Candidates with a history of weakened enamel, gum disease or any dental conditions are generally not suitable for veneers.

But when I got a friend who works in the dental profession to take a look, she pointed out that the teeth in the customer's photo below look as though they might have other underlying dental issues that need treatment first, thus potentially making this customer an unsuitable candidate for veneers. I cannot be sure on this though because I'm personally not a dentist, nor have I ever studied professional dentistry.

However, what got me concerned is that this particular procedure is being carried out in what appears to be a home salon. I was also not able to find out whether the person administering the treatment, Bibi Zhu, is licensed to provide dental services in the first place, as her name did not appear in SDC's database. Based on my research, she seems to be formerly from Xiamen.

The screenshot shows the Singapore Dental Council website. At the top left is the SDC logo. To its right is the text 'Singapore Dental Council'. Further right is the Singapore Government logo with the tagline 'Integrity • Service • Excellence' and links for 'Contact', 'Feedback', and 'Sitemap'. Below this is a search bar with two tabs: 'Search by Name' (selected) and 'Search by Region'. The search criteria are: Name: ZHU, with a checked box for 'Names starting with...'; Name of Place of Practice: (empty); and a radio button selected for 'Dentist' and 'Oral Health Therapist'. A 'Search' button is on the right. Below the search bar, it says 'Displaying 1 - 3 of 3 records'. Three results are listed: 'ZHU TINGYUN (D25551C) View more details', 'ZHU XIANG (D25613G) View more details', and 'Zhuang Ronglin (D22067A)'. At the bottom right of the search results area, there are navigation links: '(First) | (Previous) | (Next) | (Last)'.

I got worried and then went to read up about Singapore's Dental Registration Act to find out if unlicensed dentists are in fact, allowed to practice here if they haven't been registered or approved by SDC. Based on Section 22 and 28, it seems as though this could be an offence if proven to be true.

PART IV

PRACTICE OF DENTISTRY

Prohibition of practice of dentistry

22.—(1) Subject to sections 60 and 61, no person shall practise dentistry in Singapore unless he is a registered dentist and has in force a practising certificate.

[22/2007]

(1A) Subsection (1) shall not apply to any registered oral health therapist who has in force a practising certificate and who practises dentistry in Singapore in accordance with the scope of practice prescribed under section 62.

[22/2007]

(2) Any person who acts in contravention of subsection (1) shall be guilty of an offence.

Liability of employer, etc., for practice of dentistry in contravention of section 22

23.—(1) Where an offence is committed under section 22 by any person acting as an employee, an agent or a partner of another person, that other person shall also be guilty of an offence.

(2) It shall be a defence to a charge brought under subsection (1) if the defendant proves that the first-mentioned offence was committed without the defendant's knowledge and that the defendant took reasonable precautions and exercised due diligence to prevent the commission of that offence.

General penalty

28. Any person who is guilty of an offence under section 22, 23, 24, 25, 26 or 27 shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $25,000 and, in the case of a second or subsequent conviction for an offence under any of those sections, to a fine not exceeding $50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or to both.

You may refer to the full Dental Registration Act here to understand the legislation governing dental practices in Singapore.

All of these left me feeling greatly unsettled. A reader told me she had called SDC to check, but was told that it wasn't under their purview. Having no answers, I've also written into SDC and MOH and am now waiting for them to verify directly.

We've seen the aftermath of the Beautiful Teeth Whitening Kit previously, where the influencers who sold it made lots of money from the sales. Although it was later reported on CNA that sellers of the product could face a fine up to $20,000, a jail term of up to 12 months, or both, it seems like nothing has happened to the influencers who sold it thus far, and neither did any of the ones whom I was aware of ended up in jail.

That kit cost $70, but this veneer procedure costs $1,800 / $3,200 (depending on which material you go for) and supposedly lasts for 7 - 10 years. It definitely seems far more dangerous and intrusive, and I'm not quite sure if I would entrust my teeth to the hands of a home dentist whose name I cannot find on SDC's register, whether or not the influencers are promoting it.

The problem is, are there others who might have gotten influenced?

I'll update once I receive a response from SDC or MOH.

With love,
Budget Babe

Category

1. Family

default watermark