

Banish Oily Skin In October

Description

Hey guys!

I'm in the midst of an investigative post on a big-ticket item that the all of us have been fooled into paying big bucks for, so do check back for the next post where I reveal these "lies" once and for all!

In the meantime, I'm taking a short break from my research to do a quick shout-out for Blended's latest deal.

As you guys might know, the majority of my daily skincare routine consists of organic products from Blended – especially their oil-reducing cleanser, facial scrub, Vitamin C serum, organic sunscreen moisturizer and regular masks which I apply at least twice a week.

I still find it hard to use oil-based cleansers because I still like the feeling of having squeaky clean skin after washing, so I'm really proud and satisfied with Blended's cleanser. It uses both oils and oil-based soap to give you that "clean" feeling and make it easier for you to transit to the oil-cleansing method.

I promised myself that I would actively cut down on skincare products which uses synthetic chemicals after reading and seeing viral photos of older women who looked like they were still in their 20s and 30s...and finding out that their secret in keeping their skin young was in using organic skincare ONLY.

Years ago, I stopped using facial scrubs that use micro-beads, and celebrated with the rest of the world earlier this month when California decided to ban microbeads in personal cosmetics. If you haven't already found out why, you should.

Anyway, I digress. Back to the promotion: the Blended team is offering to banish oily skin once and for all only for the month of October.

The advertisement features a collage of Blended Beauty products. At the top left is the Blended Beauty logo, which consists of a sunburst icon and the word "BLENDED" in a bold, orange, sans-serif font, with "BE SURE" in a smaller font below it. To the right of the logo is a photograph of the #OilyOctober set, which includes three tubes of cleanser and three jars of exfoliator and powder, all arranged on a red background. Below the photograph is a black banner with white text that reads: "We know how annoying it can be to have a shiny T-zone or even just an oily face just hours after you've applied your makeup perfectly!" and "To help get rid of these oils once and for all, grab our #OilyOctober set:". Below the banner is a list of the three products in the set, each preceded by a number and a bolded name: "1) BE FRESH - Royal Gold Lavender Cleanser", "2) BE BRIGHT - Organic Coffee Facial Exfoliator", and "3) BE MATTE - Mattifying Oil-Control Pore Minimizing Powder". At the bottom of the list are the retail and promo prices: "Retail price: $80.80" and "October's promo price: $49.90".

To help get rid of these oils once and for all, grab our #OilyOctober set:

- 1) BE FRESH - Royal Gold Lavender Cleanser
- 2) BE BRIGHT - Organic Coffee Facial Exfoliator
- 3) BE MATTE - Mattifying Oil-Control Pore Minimizing Powder

Retail price: $80.80
October's promo price: $49.90

They have only 7 sets are available for this promotion, so do grab them fast! It's a huge savings of $30, which is why I agreed to do this post for the team.

I use all of the 3 products above myself and can assure you that they've done wonders for my skin. More on this in a post next time when I share with you how I overcame my skin struggles without spending too much money.

My favourite is the pore powder, which I use to touch up my makeup and reduce shine whenever I'm out. But Blended's customers feel differently, as it seems like their top-selling product, the coffee exfoliator, is the public's favourite instead!
