

Get out of Thinkorswim now! Better brokerages for retail investors to consider

Description

Online global brokerage TD Ameritrade used to be popular among Singapore investors, especially those who were introduced to it through various investment trainers or trading course providers. However, investors received a shock last week when TD Ameritrade announced that their brokerage platform – Thinkorswim – will no longer be serving retail investors in Singapore. If you're among those affected, here's what you can do.

PSA: Get out of Thinkorswim now

TD Ameritrade Singapore has stated that you will need to either (i) proceed with becoming an Accredited Investor with them, or (ii) take steps to close or transfer your account by the following deadlines:

- The deadline to act is 27 October 2023, after which a monthly charge of USD 50 will be automatically deducted from your account until your cash balance is zero.
- The final deadline to close your account is 31 December 2023.

To avoid paying USD 50 for essentially nothing, please take action now before 27 October 2023.

Should I become an Accredited Investor?

Firstly, even if you meet MAS' criteria and qualify to become an Accredited Investor (AI), you will need to manually opt-in with TD Ameritrade if you wish to continue using the TOS platform. The good news is, your financial assets held in a different bank can be combined to hit the assets threshold.

However, should you register as an accredited investor with TD Ameritrade? That is a different matter altogether, as you'd have to weigh the benefits and consequences to decide whether it makes sense to you. More importantly, as an Accredited Investor customer, you would no longer fall under certain

Singaporean customer protection rules. Read more about the trade-offs here.

TDAI, TDAC, and CSSF are not licensed by or registered with the Monetary Authority of Singapore and are generally not subject to the supervision of the MAS or the conduct rules applicable to licensed financial institutions. For certain conditions imposed by the MAS and limited regulations in Singapore which apply to the conditions applicable to the Cross-Border Arrangement requires you to qualify as an AI as defined by the MAS as an AI.

You are required to complete and sign this Form for us to verify your eligibility as an AI and be satisfied with the decision of opting in as an AI. We reserve the right to request additional information or documents for the AI status, Client Agreement and Limited Services Agreement are subject to the final confirmation and CSFF if applicable.

For those who do not qualify or do not wish to register as an AI, you will now need to move your assets and switch to another broker.

What about my assets on Thinkorswim?

For cash, you can simply request for a wire transfer to withdraw the cash into your bank account.

For equities and/or options, you can decide whether you prefer to

1. Close (sell) your existing positions and reopen them again (buy) on your next broker. This is the easiest and fastest method, as you are completely in control of the process and do not have to wait for any approvals. Your trade will normally take up to two (2) business days to complete on TOS; once your funds are cleared, you can proceed to withdraw them to your bank account and over to your new broker.
2. Hold your open position and transfer them to your new alternative broker instead. I wouldn't recommend this unless you've decided to switch to Interactive Brokers, as the transfer method is much slower and comes with several limitations. To transfer your account assets, you will need to initiate the Transfer of Assets (TOA) on your new brokerage which may then require you to complete their forms (either an Automated Customer Account Transfer Service (ACATS) transfer, or a DTC / DRS transfer).

Do note that there is a US$75 fee for ACAT transfers from TD Ameritrade Singapore to other brokers, but the good news is that TD Ameritrade is waiving any transfer or wire fees you incur this year only for entire account transfers and/or wire withdrawals. In other words, you'll have to do everything all at one go.

For non-ACAT transfer requests e.g. DTC or DRS, the process has a longer processing time and excludes non-securities items i.e. cash, options and fractional shares. During that period, you will not be able to trade on some of your securities positions either, so to make things simpler, go for either (i) an ACAT transfer, or (ii) liquidate and simply restart anew on another broker.

Best Alternative Brokerages to Thinkorswim

Which brokerage to choose really depends on what features and support you prioritise, or find valuable. For instance, if you insist on having all your Singapore stocks in your CDP account (like I do), then you may prefer to pay more for a local bank brokerage or opt for either FSMOne or POEMS to transact your local investments. Maybe you're an experienced investor who trades across the US, Australia and London markets, in which case you would likely already be on Interactive Brokers, POEMS or Saxo. Some people value investing only in brokerages that have a local presence (i.e. with local hires (Singaporeans) and organising local events), so they prefer Moomoo SG or FSMOne.

Frequent traders with a high volume of transactions tend to prefer digital brokers like Moomoo SG, Tiger Brokers or WeBull, due to the need for lower commissions per trade and access to live prices.

Sometimes, when you started investing also matters, because the brokerage options available to you then would have been different. Many older investors who started in the early 2000s would likely still be with their bank brokerages (e.g. DBS Vickers, OCBC Securities or Standard Chartered) or they'd be on FSMOne, which was Singapore's first online-only discounted brokerage then.

As a newbie investor, you may be tempted to simply go for the lowest-cost brokerage in Singapore. However, as someone who has been watching the scene evolve over the last decade, let me tell you why that isn't ideal: because the brokerages have changed their fees over time.

- Prior to 2000, the cheapest was a close fight between POEMS and Standard Chartered (non-CDP).
- In the early 2000s, the cheapest brokerage was FSMOne.
- In the 2010s, DBS Vickers gave FSMOne a run for its money for CDP investors when it lowered its fees for cash upfront trades.
- In 2020, Tiger Brokers entered the scene and became the cheapest online broker.
- In 2021, Moomoo SG launched and beat Tiger Brokers with even lower fees.
- In 2022, Webull entered Singapore and became the cheapest for US & HK stocks. In 2023, it removed its minimum funding requirement and is now currently giving away the most generous welcome sign-up rewards to attract new users over to its platform.

Disclaimer: These are all based off my own memory, so if you were investing du

If you choose your brokerage solely based on the cheapest fees, you may be setting yourself up for disappointment in the future as or when your broker amends its charges.

However, you should definitely still compare so that you clearly know the pros and cons of each brokerage – that will help you make a more informed decision as to which account to open. My friend Kelvin helped work on a comparison table across all the low-cost brokerages in Singapore, which you can also view in full on his Youtube channel here (support him with a like, or you can tip him here!)

Which online brokerage do you recommend?

Again, which brokerage is best for you is a personal decision that only you can make because what you value may be different from mine. I invest and trade only in the US, SG and HK markets, so features like access to Malaysia stocks (Saxo, ProsperUs) do not make any difference to me.

Nonetheless, here's my general experience and stance on how I chose between brokerages:

- Singapore stocks or ETFs – I only use CDP-linked brokerages, and my platform of choice is FSMOne because I started investing in the 2010s when Tiger Brokers and Moomoo did not exist here.
- Automated investments / Regular Savings Plans – If you hold a RSP (also known as RSS), I like FSMOne. However, some folks prefer to invest via their bank for the convenience, in which case DBS Invest Saver \(or digiPortfolio\) or OCBC would be a decent choice. Moomoo SG also offers 5.8% p.a. guaranteed returns on Moomoo Cash Plus with no lock-up periods.
- London-domiciled ETFs or stocks – Interactive Brokers is the cheapest.
- US stocks – I started with Tiger Brokers, then I opened with Moomoo SG when they launched, so I'm currently have my stocks in both brokers. Right now, one is for buy-and-hold and money market funds, while another is used for more some opportunistic trades. For Moomoo SG, the $0.99 commission fee per order means the higher the transaction amount, the more I save on fees.

Brokerage commission on 40 GOOG shares
IBKR	moomoo SG	Tiger Brokers	Webull	Syfe Trade	POEMS	FSMOne
$ 0.35	$ 0.99	$ 1.99	$ 1.38	$ 1.49	$ 1.88 - 3.88	$ 4.44

For instance, here's the brokerage commission fees I'd have to pay if I were to buy 40 GOOG shares across each of the different brokers.

- Hong Kong stocks – I started with Tiger Brokers, so my HK stocks are all parked here. However, if I were to choose now, I would go with Webull instead since they're the cheapest. If you have lower capital and need access to odd-lot trading for HK shares so that you can afford to buy blue-chip HK stocks, then Moomoo SG is your only option available.
- US options – My options account is with Interactive Brokers, only because I learnt it from a friend who was using that platform.

Let me also disclaim that I do not have direct experience with ALL the brokerages.

You can also read the reviews that I've done here (in alphabetical order) to decide which is best for you:

- FSMOne – great for automating your ETF investments, including setting up beneficiary accounts for your children
- Moomoo – commission-free trades broker, and Hong Kong's top online retail brokerage
- POEMS – great for traders and local CDP/CPF/SRS investors

- Syfe Trade – Singapore’s first neobroker offering fractional US shares and free 2 US trades each month
- Tiger Brokers – a fantastic low-cost brokerage in Singapore
- Webull – cheapest broker for US and HK stocks

Many of you have told me that you prefer a low-cost broker that

- Offers an easy-to-navigate user interface, even for beginners.
- Has local support, including a local hotline and organises local events where you can actually speak to real human beings or experts to ask questions about the app / your portfolio. Best if it also has educational outreach efforts \(such as courses\) to help beginners.

- Is used and trusted by many fellow peers and Singaporeans.
- Must be safe and unlikely to wind up, or close its Singapore operations.
- Allows one to invest in Singapore, US and Hong Kong stocks.
- Can be used for options trading.
- Offers yield on your uninvested, idle cash parked in your brokerage account.

If that sounds similar to your own criteria, then you might want to check out Moomoo SG.
